EMAIL TEMPLATE — Conditions Follow-Up

STAGE 04 • SENT WHEN ITEMS ARE STILL OUTSTANDING

Subject: Still need a few things — {{PROPERTY_ADDRESS}}

Hi {{BORROWER_FIRST_NAME}},

Quick update on {{PROPERTY_ADDRESS}}.

Received — thank you

{{RECEIVED_LIST}}

Still outstanding

{{OUTSTANDING_LIST}}

Send whatever you have as you get it. We don't need everything at once.

Where this puts us

We can't order title or set a closing date until the list is clear. {{TIMING_NOTE}}

Your conditional approval expires {{APPROVAL_EXPIRATION_DATE}}. If you need more time, tell us — we can extend it, we just need to know.

If anything on the list is hard to get, or you're not sure what we're asking for, call me. Some of these are easier than they look.

FILL-IN GUIDE

`{{RECEIVED_LIST}}` — bullet what's in. Being specific builds momentum:

- Certificate of Formation
- Operating Agreement
- EIN letter
- Driver's licenses for both principals

`{{OUTSTANDING_LIST}}` — bullet what's missing, with a note on anything that's commonly misunderstood:

- Insurance binder — needs to name Lazy Dog Capital LLC as mortgagee and loss payee. Your agent will know what that means; forward them this email if it helps.
- Bank statements — two most recent months, showing the down payment funds. Screenshots are fine.
- Executed purchase contract — including any amendments or extensions

`{{TIMING_NOTE}}` — pick one:

If we have everything by {{DATE}}, we can close the week of {{DATE}}.

Once the list is clear we're usually about a week out from closing.

(Leave blank if the borrower has gone quiet and you don't want to promise a timeline.)

NOTES

- Lead with what's received. A borrower who feels behind stops responding. Showing progress keeps them moving.
- One follow-up per week is plenty. More reads as nagging and doesn't speed anything up.
- Name the insurance requirement every time. It's the item that stalls most often, and usually because the agent doesn't know what mortgagee and loss payee language you need.
- The expiration reminder is a nudge, not a threat. Offering to extend it removes the reason to avoid you.
- If two follow-ups get no response, call. Email has stopped working at that point.
