

LAZY DOG

— CAPITAL —

EMAIL TEMPLATE — MATURITY REMINDER

SENT AT 60 DAYS AND AGAIN AT 30 DAYS OUT

Subject: {{DAYS_OUT}} days to maturity — {{PROPERTY_ADDRESS}}

Hey {{BORROWER_FIRST_NAME}},

Heads up — your loan on {{PROPERTY_ADDRESS}} matures {{MATURITY_DATE}}, which is about {{DAYS_OUT}} days out.

Payoff amount will be roughly {{ESTIMATED_PAYOFF}} as of that date. We'll send an exact figure when your title company asks for it.

Where are you at?

Selling? Great — have your title company call us for a payoff statement and we'll take it from there.

Refinancing? Same thing, just have the new lender reach out.

Need more time? One 3-month extension is available for 1% of the original loan amount, as long as you're not in default. Ask before the maturity date, not after.

Not sure yet? Call me. Easier to figure it out now than in three weeks.

{{SENDER_NAME}}

Lazy Dog Capital LLC

214-740-4989

TOKENS

{{DAYS_OUT}} · {{BORROWER_FIRST_NAME}} · {{PROPERTY_ADDRESS}} · {{MATURITY_DATE}}
· {{ESTIMATED_PAYOFF}} · {{SENDER_NAME}}

NOTES

- Same template both times — just change {{DAYS_OUT}}.
- The extension line is the point. Borrowers who miss the maturity date and then ask are in a much worse position, and so are you. Getting them to ask early turns a default into a fee.

- If the 30-day reminder gets no response, call. A borrower going quiet near maturity is the single best early warning you get.